INDIAN HISTORY AND CULTURE

General

1. India was one of the oldest centres of the prehistoric cultures of the world . India was also the cradle of one of the earliest civilizations in history - the Harappan culture. The Harappan culture was the first urban culture to flourish in India. Many of its features distinguished it from all its contemporary cultures in other parts of the world and made it a distinctly Indian civilization. Larger in extent than any of its contemporary civilization, it spread over parts of Baluchistan, Sind, Punjab, Haryana, Rajasthan, Western Uttar Pradesh and Gujarat and had links with some other parts of India as well as with contemporary civilization in West Asia.

2. The next major phase in ancient Indian history is the Vedic age which began with the coming of the Indo - European speaking people. It laid the culture that began to emerge during this phase and was the result of the inter- mixing of the Indo - Aryans with the pre-existing inhabitants of India. The next phase covering the period from about the sixth century BC to about 200 BC is marked by far reaching changes in almost every aspect of life in India. This period saw the spread of agriculture over large parts of the country, the rise of cities and the formation of the state. The period also saw the rise and decline of the first all - India empire in Indian history. This period is important not only for political unity but also for culture unity. Two major religions, Jainism and Buddhism which arose in the sixth century BC, left a lasting influence on Indian life and culture. This period saw the spread throughout the country of belief and practices associated with Hinduism, including Vedic religion as well as Buddhism. The Varna system of social organization popularly known as the caste system, which had arisen in the Vedic Age, now became well established and gradually became the dominant form of social organization throughout the country. This form of social organization was peculiar to India. The process of cultural unity is best exemplified by Ashoka. He unified almost the entire country under the empire but renounced the use of war as state policy. Instead he declared the victory of righteousness as the real victory.

3. The next phase in Ancient Indian history cover the period from about 200 BC to about AD 300. This phase is extremely important for the changes that took place in economic and political life, and significant developments in various aspects of culture including religion, art and science and technology. In economic life this period is significant for advancement of India's international trade both by land and sea routes and the emergence of cities and towns unknown to earlier phase of ancient Indian history. In political life, large parts of North Western, Northern and Western India were ruled by dynasties of non Indian origin. These were the Indo-Greeks, the Sheiks, the Parthians and the Kushanas. A significant event was the growth of the Mahayana sect of Buddhism, which the Kushana ruler Kanishka patronized and the development of the great Buddhist art associated with it.

4. The last phase of the ancient period of Indian History starts in early fourth century AD and ends in about the eighth century. The Guptas built a large kingdom during this period which remained powerful for about a century. In the Deccan and the South, there were two major Kingdoms during this period of the Pallavas and of the Chalukyas. Some of the finest achievements in various fields of culture-art, architecture, literature, philosophy, science, technology can, however, be dated to this period. Because of these achievements, this period is often described as the classical age of the Indian civilization. In religion, this is a period of decline of Buddhism and the rise of Brahmanical religion of Hinduism as we know it today. Great progress was made in literature, both religious and secular, in Sanskrit which also became the language of the court in most part of the country. In spite of the dominant position of Sanskrit in most part of the country. This period marks the beginning of many modern Indian languages as well as distinct scripts in different parts of the country. The period is also important for some of the most significant advances in science and technology. Most of the major works in astronomy, mathematics and medicine belong to this period.

The Mediaeval Period

5. During the mediaeval period, some of the achievements of the ancient times were carried forward and new magnificent structures were built on those foundations. The period from the eighth to twelfth century in political life is dominated mainly by the presence of large number of states the bigger ones among them tried to establish their supremacy in Northern India and the Deccan. The main contenders in this struggle for supremacy were the Pratiharas, the Palas and the Rashtrakutas. In the South the most powerful kingdom to emerge during this period was that of the Cholas. In the tenth century, the Turks emerged as a powerful force in Central and West Asia and carved out Kingdoms for themselves. The Turks first invaded India during the late tenth and early eleventh century and Punjab came under Turkish rule. Another series of Turkish invasions in the late twelfth and early thirteenth century led to the establishment of the Sultanate of Delhi. Within a few centuries after the rise of Islam in Arabia, it became the second most popular religion in India with followers in every part of the country.

6. The establishment of the Sultanate of Delhi marked the beginning of a new phase in the history of mediaeval India. Politically it led to the unification of Northern India and part of the Deccan for almost a century. Its rulers, almost from the time of the establishment of the Sultanate, succeeded in separating it from the country from which they had originally come. The Sultanate disintegrated towards the end of the fourteenth century leading to the emergence of a number of kingdoms in different parts of the country. Some of these, for example the Bahamani and Vijayanagaram Kingdoms, became very powerful. In society, the period is important for the introduction of new elements - the Turks, the Persians, the Mongols and the Afghans, besides the Arabs who had settled down in some coastal regions of India.

7. The growth of a composite culture reached its highest points under the Great Mughals in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. The Mughals built an empire which once again brought about the political unification of a large part of the country. Like Ashoka earlier, Akbar, the greatest of the Mughal emperors, followed a policy of 'sulh- kul' (peace with all).

The Modern Period

8. The eighteenth century marks the beginning of the modern period of India's history. Politically, the period saw the decline of the Mughal empire and the rise of a number of small and big independent States in different parts of the country for about 150 years. In spite of this, however, the process of the growth of a composite culture continued. The process of colonization of vast areas of the world by a few European countries had been underway since the sixteenth century. Changes of a comparable nature failed to take place in India, as also in other countries of Asia and Africa. There was also no awareness of the importance of the changes taking place in Europe in spite of contacts with European traders, missionaries and others. From about the middle of the eighteenth century, the conquest of India by the British began. It was completed in a few decades and by the middle of the nineteenth century, the entire country was under the direct or indirect rule of the British. For the first time in her history, India came under foreign rule. She was ruled by foreigners who had not come to settle but to rule in interest of their mother country. A new system of exploitation of a country came into being. Under the new conditions created by foreign rule, the people of India were awakened and this awakening expressed itself, finally, in the struggle for independence, the end of imperialist exploitation of India and building of a new India. The nationalist movement united the Indian people on a new basis. It recognized and cherished the unity in diversity and the composite nature of India's culture as its unique feature.

9. As early as in the nineties of the eighteenth century Raja Ram Mohan Roy came to the forefront of Indian National struggle. Before him Surendra Nath Banerjee and others had set the ball rolling though not with great momentum. The Indian National Congress established by A.O. Hume in 1885 was the first All India Organisation. The birth of the Indian National Congress gave a new direction to the National movement in India. In the beginning the Congressmen were loyal to the British Crown. They only demanded some favours for the educated people of India. In the first stage extending from 1885 to 1900 the members of the Congress only wanted to get a share in the British administration. The second phase of Congress politics extends from 1900 to 1918. During this period revolutionary groups began to take the lead. During the third stage from 1919, Gandhiji began to dominate the Congress organisation. During World War-1, Gandhiji co-operated with the British Government. The Jallianwala Bagh tragedy and the Rowlatt Act resulted in the non-cooperation movement on a widest possible scale. The Congress organisation under Gandhiji became a mass movement representing the interests of the whole of India. The National movement for freedom began to spread among the workers and the peasants as well. The socialists and the communists also joined in. As the National movement spread, British rulers pursued their policy of 'Divide and Rule'. They set the Muslims against the Hindus and the Hindus against the Muslims. In 1927, the Simon Commission visited India to study the political situation. The Commission was received with black flags at Lahore. Lala Lajpat Rai received a lathi blow on account of which he died. This ugly incident created a stir in the whole country. The Congress started the Civil Disobedience Movement in which more than 90,000 people were arrested. The movement was withdrawn in 1931 as a result of the Gandhi-Irwin Pact. Ramsay MacDonald gave his communal award in 1932. Gandhiji observed a fast unto death to undo the separate presentation given to Harijans under the leaders of the suvarna Hindu and the Harijans.

10. The Government of India Act 1935 was put into force in 1937. The Congress contested elections for the provincial legislatures, won a vast majority of seats in 8 out of 11 Indian provinces and formed Ministry. However, World War II broke out in 1939 and the Congress party resigned from the Ministry. Gandhiji again took the reins in his hands. He wanted complete independence for India. The British Government sent Sir Stafford Cripps to solve the political dead - lock. The mission proved a failure. Next came the Cabinet Mission. As the political parties of India could not reach an agreement, the Mission gave its own award. The Executive council of the Governor General was to be selected in order to frame the Constitution of India. The Congress and the Muslim League did not agree. The League clamoured for the creation of Pakistan. Lord Atlee, the British Prime Minister, fixed June 1948 as the final date for the transfer of power. Lord Mountbatten was sent to India as Viceroy. He held talks with the leaders of the Congress and the League. Both agreed to part company. India was partitioned according to the Indian Independence Act 1947.

Dimensions of Indian Culture

11. Various races have been coming to India from time immemorial. The civilizations of these races differed a great deal from one another. On entering India, they had conflicts with the earlier inhabitants of the country. These conflicts affected their respective cultures and through the process of assimilation and synthesis, Indian culture grew all the more richer.

Effect of Negrito Race

12. According to J H Huntton, the oldest race reaching India was Negrito. They were not very high from the point of view of civilization. They did not know how to make use of the instruments made of stones and bones, how to cultivate the land, how to make earthenwares or how to build houses. They are now found in Andaman Island only. The race which arrived in India after the Negrito race was Proto-Australoid or the primitive Australian race. They are specially found in Central India or in South - East India in the present age. They are also called 'Austriac' in English and 'Agneya' in Hindi. Santhal, Munda, Birho, Asur, Kobra, Coorg, Jaung and such other tribes are related to the Proto- Australoid race. The people of Australoid race influenced the material and religious life in India. Indians learnt, in the material field, how to cultivate the land with the help of pick - axe and to grow rice, bananas, coconuts, brinjals, betel leaves, lemons, jamboo fruit and cotton from them. In the religious field, they brought to India many things like the belief in rebirth, various fabulous stories about the origin of creation, a myth about incarnation of God in a tortoise, belief about the existence of Gods in stones, the worship of various creatures like snakes, crocodiles, monkeys etc. The interesting stories in Mahabharat and Ramayan about Vasuki, the ruler in 'Patal Lok', the origin of the creation from snakes and eggs, interesting stories about Ganesh, etc have been taken from the mythical of this race. Perhaps this very race taught the Indians how to count the dates according to moon phases and fixation of sacred festivals etc.

13. Arrival of Dravidians and Their Influence The people of Dravidian or Mediterranean race came to India after the Proto-Australoid race. They were more civilized than the people of both the races which came to India earlier. Under their influence new Gods and new methods of worship came to the Indian religious field. In fact, the word 'Pooja' (worship), belongs to Dravidian language. The acceptance of an idol, as representative of some God, to offer it flowers and tree leaves, to offer it vermilion and sandal paste, to burn incense before it to ring bells, to sing to dance before it, to offer and accept sweets and such other ways of worship were given to India by the Dravidians. The chief new Gods, who began to be worshiped under the influence of the Dravidians, were Shiva, Uma, Kartikeya, Hanuman, Shitla and Ganesh etc. Under the Dravidian influence, the number of Gods increased. Gods and Goddesses, village God, family God and other Gods of Hindu religion supposed to be 330 million in number, are all the result of their influence. The importance of the sacred places of worship increased under the influence of the Dravidians. In the same way, they also preached the worship of the trees, like workshop of tulsi, banyan, peepal, bel and many others. It was the Dravidians who gave Indians the festivals of Holi and Basant.

PRINCIPAL

14. Arrival of Aryans and Their Influence. Aryans made the greatest contribution towards the development of Indian culture. It is their tongue which is in use today in major parts of India. Their Vedas are the main roots of Indian culture. The contribution of the Aryans towards the Indian culture has been thus described by Dr Jadunath Sarkar: (1) A feeling of sympathy and adjustment (2) Wonderful evolution of science and philosophy (3) Aryans' fixation of adjustment among different castes through their principle of 'Varna' system (4) Spread of civilization among the demons and wild tribes through 'Tapovan' system.

15. Muslim Influence. Muslims came to India after the Aryans. In his book titled 'Influence of Islam on Indian Culture', Dr Tarachand has written that the influence of Muslims on the various parts of Indian life has been very great and this influence has been seen specially on Hindu customs, on the very minute things of their family, on music, dress, cooking methods, marriage traditions, festivals, fairs and on the institutions and manners of the Maratha, Rajput and Sikh courts.

16. Influence of the British. After the Muslims, the British deeply influenced all aspects of Indian culture. The spread of English language brought hundreds of English words into the Indian languages. The influence of western culture on the prose, novel, one-act plays and poetry, etc in Indian literature can be clearly seen. Western education created a wave of reformation in the whole country. On the one hand, the ideas of equality, freedom and nationality helped in uprooting the social evils like Sati custom, killing of female child, child marriage and prohibition of widow marriage, on the other hand, they created a political awakening in the country. The present form of administration in India is the outcome of the great influence of the British ideology. The present economic organization, joint stock companies, managing agencies, big factories, production through machines, railways, telegraphs, telephone, aeroplanes and other means of conveyance and communication were brought to India from the west. This influence has regularly been on the increase and it is also needed for the country's progress, although its assimilation is equally necessary.

Conclusion

17. India's culture has been such that it did not develop into a finished form in any period. Throughout her long history, India's culture has been changing and developing due to internal factors and contacts with other cultures. This process of change and development continues. The culture of India, as of any other country, is not a fixed entity. Many aspects of culture, if they progress, get discarded others are changed, sometimes beyond recognition, some others continue to survive and remain impertinent, while many new elements are added. A remarkable feature of Indian historical and cultural development has been its continuity. This continuity has few parallels in the history of other civilisations.

SECTION -2

RELIGIONS AND CUSTOMS OF INDIA

Introduction

1. India is a multi religious democratic country. There are six major religions in India with percentage of population as under :-

(a)	Hindus	-	83.5 %
(b)	Muslims	-	10.7 %
(c)	Christians	-	2.44 %
(d)	Sikhs	-	1.79 %
(e)	Buddhists	-	0.74 %
(f)	Jains	-	0.46 %
(g)	Others	-	0.37 %

2. The historical analysis has proved that religion has played an obstructive role in the rise of nationalism. In ancient and mediaeval time it has worked as a system of exploitation. Under the British rule religion acted as a main barrier against national unity. The creation of Pakistan was final blow rendered by political mobilization on communal lines. The above problem was due to some religion oriented political parties, which is on the decline. Secondly the public has realized the fact that religion is a private affair of an individual and it should not be mixed with political affairs of the state. That is why most of the advanced democratic states have adopted secularism in their constitution, which is a factor for unity in multi-religious societies like ours.

Main Religions of India

3. Hinduism. Religion for the Hindu is experience or attitude of mind. It is not an idea but a power, not an intellectual proposition but a life conviction. It is consciousness of ultimate reality. Man becomes aware of God through experience. The source of Hindu thought is the Vedas. The Hindus believe in meditation and yoga. The goal of religious quest is earned by intellectual and moral discipline. The Hindus believe in re-birth, spirit and salvation. Perfection in life as per Hinduism is attained through knowledge of truth. Divinity can be realised in mind and spirit. We must attain an integrated vision, a wholesome life, health and strength of body, alertness of mind through meditation and yoga. The theory of Hinduism lays stress on Bhakti, Karma and Re-birth.

4. Islam. Islam means 'Submission' or resignation to Allah (God). The Quran, the highest authority is revealed and created being the eternal word of God incarnate. All the prophets from Adam to Mohammad and the books revealed to them are regarded as religious heritage of Islam. Muslims have to bear witness to the oneness of God and message of Muhammed and have to observe prayer five times daily with a weekly Juma prayer on Friday noon. They have to pay Zakath (religious tax) to the rightful beneficiaries and the minimum is two and half percent of the net annual income. They keep dawn to dusk fast for purity of soul in the ninth month of Ramzan of the Islamic year. The wealthy Muslims and who can afford make pilgrimage to Haj once in life time. Islam has its influence in three continents of Asia, Africa and Europe. It gives right of properties to women also. The Islamic teaching highlights are purity of life, charity to the poor and spread of brotherhood.

5. Christianity. Christianity founded by Jesus Christ, commands the largest following in the world. Christ was born in 4 BC in Judaea. He started preaching about the kingdom of God when he was thirty. His activities roused the opposition of the Jewish high priests who accused him. He was crucified on the orders of Pontius Pilate, the Roman Governor. Christianity preaches charity, love and peace. The message of Jesus Christ is given in the Holy Bible. Christianity is not a religion but a way of life which guides the actions and life for mental peace and love of humanity.

6. Jainism. Jainism derives its name from Jaina (the Conqueror). Mahavira belonged to a princely family in Vaishali. At the age of 30 he renounced the world and spent 12 years in austerity and meditation in search of truth. At the age of 47, while meditating, he received enlightenment. As per Jainism teachings, anger, pride, deception and greed must be counteracted by the ten best virtues such as forgiveness, humility, straight forwardness, contentment, truthfulness, restraint, austerity, purity, chastity and renunciation. To keep himself steady on path of liberation and to destroy karma, a monk has to bear all the trouble that might cause him pains. The monk has to practice austerity external and internal. It is pure meditation which ultimately leads to liberation.

7. Buddhism. Buddhism was founded by Gautam Buddha who was son of Indian Prince Suddhodan. The sorrow and suffering of the world tormented his heart and he abandoned his house and started pursuit for enlightenment. Gautam found enlightenment while meditating under a Pipal tree at the age of 42. Buddha preached that emancipation from cycle of re-birth i.e Nirvana can be attained by path of self purification, with doctrine of love and mercy. Buddhism is essentially a religion of kindness, humanity and equality. It denounces all claims to superiority on grounds of birth or caste. The status of man in society is determined by his own conduct and actions.

8. Sikhism. God the original Guru, imparted his message to his disciple Nanak, who having absorbed the divine spirit became the Guru himself. The message is known as Gurmat. He who follows the teaching of Gurmat is a pure person and known as Sikh. The same spirit was passed on to the successive Gurus and ultimately the divine spirit has been passed onto the sacred script of 'Guru Granth Saheb'. The teachings of Sikhism are that God is one. Equality in society and leading a life of purity are important. Man can attain God while leading a normal family life. The institution of Gurudwara and common kitchen (langar) are noble examples of equality in Sikhism.

Customs of India

9. India is a multiracial, multilingual civilization with rich culture heritage and has provided peaceful atmosphere for the development of many religions. Indian culture and customs are influenced by these religions. The customs of India depict very colourful panorama. There are certain customs which are prevalent in a particular religion and some are common to all religions of the country.

10. Indian festivals are famous in the world. Most of the festivals are related to the change of weather and crop harvesting since India is an agro based economy. The most famous Indian festivals are Diwali, Holi, Dussehra and Basant Panchami. There are certain festivals which are prevalent in particular regions only like Bihu in Assam, Baishakhi in Punjab etc. The customs are of various types in relation to local customs, caste customs and family customs. There are different customs of Hindu marriage as compared to a Muslim marriage or a Sikh marriage. Similarly there are different customs of celebrations. All these customs have been protected by law.

11. There are certain religious customs which pertain to particular religion only like Mundan ceremony in Hindus and Naming ceremony in Sikhs. These customs have religious value and are a means of entertainment also.

12. There are certain customs regarding dresses and ornaments of women. These are associated with particular regions which gives a very colorful dimension to Indian customs and traditions, Similarly, all regions have their distinctive ornaments.

13. India being a big country with different races and religions has rich customs related to festivals, religious ceremonies, dresses, marriage, architecture, painting, song, dance and food habits. The customs and traditions of India though varied has binding force in them which ultimately serves as a unifying factor of Secular India.

SECTION-3

UNITY IN DIVERSITY

Introduction

1. India is a vast country with diversity in caste, religion, customs and traditions where people from different ethnological groups having different languages or dialects, follow different rituals in daily life and work together shoulder to shoulder. In spite of diversity in physical features and social systems, there is unity in India. It is held together by many ties like territory, language, culture and economic inter-dependence etc. Our history is replete with examples that illustrate the set-backs suffered by us because of our disunity. Mohammad Gauri was able to set his foot on Indian soil because of internal friction and disunity between two Indian rulers. The British too followed the policy of 'Divide and Rule' and kept the doors of freedom closed, because they could disunite Indians easily.

Importance of National Unity

2. National unity is also essential for social peace and harmony. We can enjoy peace and security, if there is a mutual trust and goodwill among all the sects of people of the country. No progress can be made in the field of art and literature, science and cultural advancement and economic well-being if disruptive tendencies and divisive forces are around to tear asunder the very fabric of national life. Also we can play an effective role in the international field if we can set our own house in order first.

Fundamentals of Unity

3. Some of the essentials for National Unity are as given below:-

(a) Language. Narrow minded love towards one's own language and negative feeling towards others is a major hindrance to unity. No country can stand on the pillars of an alien language. A language, instead of dividing, should be a unifying force. A via media acceptable to all would go a long way in bringing about linguistic unity in the country. Along with regional languages one national language should be fully developed. Languages of different states should be encouraged in the educational institutions.

(b) Casteism. It is felt in offices and colleges, in politics and almost in all walks of life. The feeling of belonging to an upper caste and hatred for the lower caste is not only an offence against mankind it is a threat to India's unity. The system of casteism and untouchability would eat into the very vitals of a society. Casteism should be tackled with an iron hand. There should be no communal or special constituents. The minority communities should be given their due share of advancement and communal favouritism should be sternly dealt with.

(c) Education. In India about half of the total population is illiterate. An illiterate person cannot understand what is good or bad for himself or his country. Literacy is an important ingredient for unity. The pattern of education should be so oriented that it encourages love, brotherhood and unity amongst various communities. There could be exchange of teachers from one state to another and there should be no bar on the students of one state for admission into the universities of other states. It would help to cement the bonds of unity which is an essence of any nation.

GOVT. COLLEGE

(d) Communalism. Communalism means discriminatory feelings of an individual against another on the basis of religion or caste. This also endangers the unity of our country. Fundamentalism is the greatest challenge to India's unity. This has to be sternly dealt with. The politicians who encourage provincialism and regionalism should be debarred from elections as members of legislative bodies. All citizens should regard themselves as Indians first and build unity between different sections of our society.

(e) Regionalism. India is a vast country where regional diversities exist. The feeling of loyalty towards one's own state or region first is also a major hindrance in unity. People from different parts of the diversified subcontinent should meet under a common wing of national consciousness, forgetting the regional differences, sharing the feelings of togetherness and realise the proud feeling in themselves of being part and parcel of a common Indian diaspora.

Relevance of NCC in Unifying India

4. NCC creates awareness amongst youth about the diverse heritage of our country and fosters national integration despite linguistic, cultural, religious and geographical barriers. It helps cadets gain experience to live together, co-operate with each other and work in harmony with cadets of other states whom they have not known before, thus helping in strengthening unity as under:-

(a) Ethics and Social Values. These are very important values in day-to-day activities on the ground and are the essentials of personality. NCC helps to cultivate these values through which the spirit of unity and value of personal sacrifice are ignited in the minds of cadets.

(b) Cultural and Traditional Values. Our country has diverse groups which have been divided on grounds of religion, caste, creed and language. NCC organises various camps and group activities where ample opportunity is given to the cadets to closely watch the cultural and traditional shows of other regions. It provides the cadets with an opportunity to appreciate each other's uniqueness and cultivate friendship.

(c) Discipline and Patriotism. A cadet is trained to give selfless service to society and be available anytime for national cause. NCC can be described as the nation's disciplined, trained and motivated young force available for national service to provide assistance in various places as well as provide future leadership and participation in all walks of life.

SECTION-4

NATIONAL INTEGRATION AND ITS IMPORTANCE

Introduction

1. Indian civilisation is one of the oldest civilisations in the world. In the past people belonging to different races and religions came and settled here. They brought with them their distinctive language and life style. Different tribes with their distinct languages intermingled with various tribes of our country. That is why our culture is described as an example of composite culture. It is made up of all communities, races and religions.

National Integration

2. National integration means a feeling of togetherness and unity among the people of a country. It also means an atmosphere in which all citizens, irrespective of their caste, religion and region live together peacefully. It refers to integration in all respects, social political, economic and above all emotional. In an integrated country people share common goals. They all work together and co-operate with each other for the prosperity of the nation.

3. We must understand that national integration does not mean uniformity of all. It does not stand for uniformity of religion, dress and food habits etc. It means both preservation of diverse cultures and at the same time living and working in harmony with each other. No country or society can survive if its people do not remain united. The feeling of togetherness and a sense of belonging are absolutely necessary for a nation to survive. Such a feeling can only be generated through the process of integration. Thus national integration is a positive concept which provides strength to the people to fight against all evil forces. It provides a congenial condition in which people can make good progress.

Importance

4. National integration has assumed greater importance in the recent years due to the fast changing ethos and moral values in the society. The need for national integration was probably never felt before as is felt today. The turbulent atmosphere and the deteriorating law and order situation in the country due to various religious, social and political factors have led to the realisation of the necessity of national integration.

5. The realisation of its importance in itself is a step in the desired direction. The Government having appreciated the urgency and seriousness of the subject is taking positive steps towards achieving the national integration. NCC, one of the prime organisations of the country training the youth, the future of this great nation, makes the ideal ground to start with. National integration has been made part and parcel of NCC training. Lot of emphasis is laid on national integration by conducting national level camps and number of other activities where cadets from all over the country participate.

6. National integration assumes greater importance particularly in a country like India where people with different languages, religions, races and culture are required to be weaved together. The unity in diversity of which we are proud of can only be maintained if we have the understanding and respect for each other's religion, customs and traditions. It is said that 'United we stand and divided we fall'. If we have to survive as a nation and safeguard our sovereignty and national integrity, we have to remain united. National integration is a pre-requisite for the survival and prosperity of any nation and hence needs no emphasis. National integration is a must to achieve the basic for survival of any nation such as:-

- (a) Maintenance of sovereignty and territorial integrity of the nation.
- (b) Maintenance of peace and harmony.
- (c) Growth and development of the nation.
- (d) Eradication of poverty and illiteracy.
- (e) Internal security and law and order.
- (f) Culture and religious development.
- (g) Economic and industrial growth.
- (h) Attract foreign investment and increase import and export.
- (j) Exchange of technological know-how and culture .
- (k) Dignity and self respect as a nation.
- (l) Welfare and well-being of the people.
- (m) Foreign relations and better standing among the nations of the world.

7. It is the duty of each and every citizen of our country to strive to achieve unity inspite of diversity and further cement it. We must remember that there should be no divisions between North and South or East and West of India. There is only one India of which we all Indians are inheritors. We are Indian first and Indians last.

SECTION -5

INDIA'S NEIGHBOURS

Introduction

1. Soon after independence , India adopted the policy of peaceful co-existence and non-alignment in international relations, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, the first Prime Minister of the country, laid special emphasis on maintaining cordial relations with her neighbours. However, there have been some disputes or problems with some of our neighboring countries. India has always insisted on peaceful settlement of these disputes firmly believing that the South Asian region including India, Pakistan, Nepal, Bangladesh, Bhutan, Sri Lanka and Maldives can have peace, stability, and growth only when these nations work together for this purpose. It is for this reason that India played an important role in the formation of SAARC (South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation).

India and China

2. Some Facts about China. Capital- Beijing, Area - 9,561000 sq. km, Population –1,102,200,000, Literacy-70%, Religion-Buddhism and Taosim, Currency-Yuan China is the most populous country in the world. It is also the third largest in terms of area. There are twenty one provinces, five autonomous regions and three municipalities Beijing, Shanghai and Tientsin in China. It is one of the oldest countries in the world. It became a republic in 1911 and finally turned into a communist state in 1949. China is primarily an agricultural country. However, it also has a strong industrial base. It is also a nuclear power. China has made remarkable advances in space technology too.

2. India and China have had cultural and trade relations since time immemorial. For centuries the two neighbour maintained friendly and cordial relations in all walks of life. Buddhism, a religion of Indian origin, became the dominant religion of China. Chinese travellers like Fa-Hien, Huen Tsang and may others visited India in search of knowledge. A number of Indian Buddhists like Buddha Bhadra, Parmartha, Guna Bhadra and Dharma Gupta visited China to propagate Buddhism during ancient times. In 1954, Chou-en-Lai, the Prime Minister of communist China, visited India. An agreement of perpetual friendship based on the five principles of Panchsheel was signed between the two countries. India also sponsored the claim of communist China to have a seat in the United Nations. Cultural and trade delegations were exchanged to promote better understanding between the two countries. However, the relation between the two countries got strained over the border issue. A big chunk of our territory was occupied by the Chinese. China claimed over 50,000 miles of India territory in the Himalayan region as its own. In 1959, the Chinese built a road through Aksai Chin part of the Laddakh region of Jammu and Kashmir state.

3. The Indo-China relations were spoiled further when China attacked India, in October, 1962. Fighting continued for a month though the dispute regarding the boundary line is yet to be resolved. India has been doing her best to normalise relations with China. As a result, relations have improved in the field of culture, education, science and technology.

4. The Chinese economy is the fastest growing in the world, though of late it has been showing some signs of slowing down. The Chinese leadership has set a goal for itself to be militarily, politically and economically at par with the major powers of the world by 2025. Within the country, the problem of Tibet persists, but it is being suppressed with a heavy hand, like other movements for democracy.

5. China has the capability to strike any part of India with its intermediate range ballistic missiles (IRBM) and inter continental ballistic missiles (ICBM). Although China has declared no first use of nuclear weapons, the threat looms large. China has improved communication infrastructure in Tibet including rail link from Qinghai to Lhasa in Tibet (which is the world's highest railway at an average height of 14450 ft and 1140 km long) and road link in Aksai Chin area for sustaining large forces along the Indo-Tibetan border. The agreement of maintaining peace and tranquility on the Sino-Indian border and the confidence building measures were initiated in 1996. India on its part cannot afford to let down its guard, militarily and diplomatically, With China aiding Pakistan in a big way and also having its naval presence in the ports of Myanmar and its island in the Bay of Bengal, India needs to be cautious. Opening of Nathu La pass, ancient 'Silk Route', on 06 Jul 2006 for trade between two countries has opened a new chapter in the history of both the countries.

India and Nepal

6. Some facts about Nepal. Capital-Kathmandu, Area-147,181sq. km. Population-18.8 million, a language-Nepali, Literacy-29%, Religion-Hinduism & Buddhism, Currency-Nepalese Rupee. Nepal is located in the North of India. It is a land-locked country lying between India and China. It is bounded on the North by Tibet (China), on the South and West by Bihar and Uttar Pradesh. Nepal is a member of the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation (SAARC).

7. India and Nepal have cultural and commercial relations since time immemorial. People of both the countries have relatives and friends on either side of the border. Since 1947, India has been having more or less cordial relations with Nepal. India extended financial and technological assistance to Nepal in various fields. India played a considerable role in the development and modernisation of Nepal. Many industries have been installed in Nepal with Indian assistance. The inauguration of Devighat Hydro- electric Project in Nepal in 1985 marked a significant milestone in the history of India - Nepal co-operation. The relations between the two countries improved considerably when Nepalese Prime Minister Sri GP Koirala visited India in December, 1991. This led to the conclusion of two separate treaties of Trade and Transit. Both the countries have agreed to cooperate in the field of agriculture, agro-based industries (sugar and paper), processing of cash crops, science and technology.

8. Agriculture and tourism are the mainstays of its economy, however, both have been hit due to the Maoist insurgency. Though Nepal does not face any external threats, it is suffering from severe internal problems. Inefficient governments in succession have led to an economic and social crisis, providing fuel to the Maoist movement. The insurgents strike at will, stretching the police and military to their limits. In addition, the resultant poor law and order situation has permitted anti-Indian terrorists to operate from Nepal.

9. India cannot afford to relax its vigil on the Nepalese front. It has to keep a close watch on the Maoist movement and not allow it to grow any further. The Indo-Nepal border needs to be sealed, if required, to ensure that the insurgents do not take refuge in the adjoining Indian states. In so far as aid to resurrect the ailing economy is concerned, it is in India's interest to enroll the assistance of other SAARC states to bring Nepal out of the doldrums, providing a major share itself. After the bloody palace coup in Kathmandu and sudden rise in Maoist activities, popularity of king nosedived and on uprising of local population, multiparty Government installed and powers of King were curtailed. Situation is still fluid and India needs to play greater role in stability of Nepal.

India and Bhutan

10. Some Facts about Bhutan. Capital-Thimphu, Area - 465000 sq km, Population-1.4 million, Language - Dzongkha, Literacy-12% Religion - Buddhism, Currency - Ngultrum.

11. The kingdom of Bhutan lies in the Eastern Himalayas. It is bordered on the North by China and on all other sides by India. In 1983 Bhutan became a founder member of the South Asian Association for Regional Co-operation (SAARC). Ties of religion, culture and friendship bind the people of India and Bhutan. India has very special relations with Bhutan. She is responsible for Bhutan's communications and also her security. India has made major contribution to the development and modernization of Bhutan's economy. India is closely involved in the development of education and technical skills in Bhutan. Indian agencies have been executing major projects in the fields of tele-communications, roads and water resources development.

12. While Bhutan does not face any external security threat, its position along the Indo-Chinese border puts it in a very strategic position in so far as India is concerned. It was also a safe haven for the Bodo and United Liberation Front of Assam (ULFA) militants, they having set up regular camps inside Bhutan. Of late the military action by the Bhutanese Army has resulted in rout of the rebels leading to large scale surrender. India, as the big brother, needs to continue to maintain cordial relation with the kingdom, lest it comes under the Chinese influence. Towards that end, economic, industrial and military aid on a continuous basis should be the forerunner for our policy directed towards Bhutan.

India and Myanmar

13. Some fact about Myanmar. Area - 676553 sq km, Population - 40.3 million. Language - Burmese and Tribal, Literacy 66%, Religion - Buddhism, Currency - Kyat.

14. Myanmar (Burma till 18 Jun 1989) became an independent country on January 4, 1948. The country is popularly known as the “Rice Bowl of the Far East”, Myanmar is our neighbour on the Eastern side. India and Myanmar have been maintaining close relations since time immemorial. Ties of traditions and culture bind both the countries in a harmonious relationship. Buddhism is the predominant religion of the majority in Myanmar,

15. Myanmar, though a resource rich country, suffers from dismal poverty with a bleak future. The economy, under the Army, has been suffering from serious imbalances. With the ceasing of international aid due to the suppression of the democratic movement and ignoring of a democratic election in 1990, the economy has been slipping further.

16. India, though opposed to military dictatorship, has been pursuing a pragmatic approach in its relations with Myanmar as the two countries share a common border and have common national security problems. Many NE insurgent groups have been taking refuge in the adjoining territory and operate from Myanmar. The porous border has also been a conduit for the supply of drugs into India. India is interested in maintaining a reasonable working relationship with Myanmar, as China is its main supplier of arms and military assistance. Both the countries have agreed to check drug-smuggling and other unlawful activities on their borders.

India and Bangladesh

17. Some Facts about Bangladesh. Capital - Dhaka, Area 143,999 sq km, Population-109.6 million, Language-Bangla, Literacy - 33% Religion- Islam, Currency - Taka.

18. Bangladesh emerged as an independent nation in 1971. It was earlier a province of Pakistan and was called East Pakistan. Bangladesh is a founder member of the SAARC. Bangladesh is bounded in North by the Indian states of Assam and Meghalaya. In the East, it is surrounded by West Bengal (India). In the East, it is bounded by Indian states of Assam and Tripura and also Myanmar. In the South lies the Bay of Bengal. India played an important role in the independence of Bangladesh. Indian forces helped the people of Bangladesh in their struggle against oppression and domination by West Pakistan. Not only this, India offered considerable financial and technical assistance to Bangladesh in her development programmes. Both the countries had maintained friendly relations with each other initially.

19. However, the relations between Bangladesh and India have not been on the best of terms ever since the last elections in 2001. The sharing of the Ganga waters, illegal migration of Bangladeshis, provision of shelter to anti-Indian insurgent groups of the North Eastern (NE) states, are some of the prickly issues that have precluded harmonious relations between the two countries.

20. Bangladesh with its internal problems and the porous border with India poses a very serious security threat to India. The country has been the recipient of sustained international aid to assist it improve its economy and demographic prospects, yet it continues to remain a poor, over-populated and ill-governed nation. Its geographical location has added to its miseries with natural disasters occurring at a regular frequency, thus acting as impediments to growth. Other major impediments include inefficient and ill-managed state enterprises, slow implementation of economic reforms, a high rate of unemployment that cannot be absorbed by the agriculture sector and prolonged delays in exploiting the natural resources.

21. Internally, Bangladesh faces a threat from fundamentalist Muslim groups. Due to political infighting, there has not been much control over the activities of such groups, leading to a continuous deterioration in the law and order situation. After the last elections, government control over such groups has further reduced, as some of the controlling fundamentalist parties are now a part of the coalition. Activities of the AI Qaeda and other Inter Service Intelligence (ISI) backed groups have increased in Bangladesh.

India and Sri Lanka

22. Some Facts about Sri Lanka. Capital - Colombo, Area 65,610 sq km, Population- 16.9 million, Language- Sinhala, Tamil & English, Literacy - 87%, Religion - Buddhism, Christianity and Islam, Currency - Rupee.

23. Sri Lanka is an island country in the Indian Ocean. It is about 80 km East of the Southern tip of India. Sri Lanka became independent on 4th February 1948. It became a Republic on 22nd May 1972.

24. Like with other neighbours India's relations with Sri Lanka date back to the past. The name Sri Lanka figures in our history and mythology. Bonds of traditions and culture bring the two countries close to each other. Emperor Ashoka's son Mahendra and daughter Sanghamitra, went to Sri Lanka as Buddhist missionaries. Buddhism is today a predominant religion in Sri Lanka. Thousands of Buddhist pilgrims come to visit Buddhist holy places in India. Similarly, thousands of people of Indian origin live in Sri Lanka, India has been following a policy of peace, friendship and cooperation towards Sri Lanka. Both the countries have been co-operating with each other in cultural and economic spheres. However, our relations with Sri Lanka got somewhat strained due to the ethnic strife there in recent years. In fact, a large number of Tamilians (of Indian origin) have been living there for a long time. The citizenship laws in Sri Lanka were such that most of these people could not acquire citizenship of that country. The Tamils had also been agitating for a better treatment for themselves. The response of the Sri Lanka government was, however, lukewarm.

25. The militant sections among the Tamils took up arms and demanded a separate Tamil State (Elam) for themselves. This resulted in dreadful violence against Tamils in Sri Lanka. The Tamils ran for safety to India. India showed her concern for the ethnic conflict in Sri Lanka. She sought a political solution to the problem. In July 1987 India and Sri Lanka signed an agreement to end the crisis. Under the terms of the agreement India sent the Indian Peace keeping Force (IPKF) to help the Government of Sri Lanka to curb violence. The IPKF returned after doing a good job in establishing peace in Sri Lanka. Though the ethnic problem has not yet been resolved India and Norway are doing their best to resolve the crisis.

26. Sri Lanka has no external threat. The ceasefire between the Government and the Liberation Tamil Tigers Elam (LTTE) main militant groups is holding after almost two decades of conflict. The stumbling block, if it may be called so, is the internal political situation in Sri Lanka. The situation has again become alarming due to violation of ceasefire agreement by LTTE.

27. As a close maritime neighbour, the country is of strategic importance to India. It is in India's interest to see that peace returns to Sri Lanka with political, economic and social stability. India has to continually involve itself in the affairs of Sri Lanka to ensure no third party, inimical to India's interest, steps in. The involvement need not be of the type of 1987, but can be in the form of diplomatic and military support and economic assistance.

India and Pakistan

28. Some Fact about Pakistan. Capital - Islamabad, Area - 796.095 sq km, Population-103.2 million, Language-Urdu , Literacy - 26% , Religion - Islam, Currency - Rupees.

29. The Islamic Republic of Pakistan lies in the Northwest side of India. It came into existence on 14 August 1947 as a result of partition of India. Culturally, both the countries find themselves close to each other. However, the relations between the two countries are marked by tension and strains. Partition itself resulted in violence, hatred and a lot of ill-feeling between people of both the countries. It was this grim background that influenced the relations between the two countries. There have been many areas of tension and dispute between India and Pakistan, such as the border and sharing of river- water. We had to fight four wars with Pakistan in 1949, 1965, 1971 and Kargil war in 1999.

30. The Shimla Agreement between the two countries envisaged that the Kashmir problem will be solved through bilateral talks. India has voiced her displeasure over Pakistan raising the Kashmir issue in international forum. India maintains that Pakistan has always fomented trouble for India by earlier aiding the terrorists in Punjab and now in Kashmir.

31. Pakistan has been joining groups to suit its convenience. After joining the Mujahideen to oust the Soviets from Afganistan, it switched sides from the Taliban to the American alliance after 11 September 2001. This helped the Government to extricate itself from a precarious economic situation but it created political problems within the country. International pressure, mainly from the USA, has resulted in President Musharraf giving a public undertaking at the SAARC Summit, not to allow the use of Pakistani territory for terrorism.

32. With the recent exposure of nuclear secrets being shared by the head of the Pakistan's nuclear programme with Iran, Libya and North Korea, Pakistan is once again in the limelight. International media is asking for details of the leaks and the involvement of the Pakistani military, which controls the nuclear weapons program.

33. There is a growing disenchantment in the general public with the Government over the continuing involvement with the USA. The internal politics with President Musharraf holding the additional portfolio of the Army Chief would, therefore, continue to be turbulent.

34. Our country has taken various measures to maintain political, economic and cultural contacts with Pakistan. The two countries have decided to promote the idea of people-to-people contact. Opening of Wagha and Uri border road links and Munabao-Gadara rail link between the two countries has further improved relations between its people. There have been encouraging developments in the field of sports and cultural contacts between the two countries.

35. India has been following a good neighbouring policy towards Pakistan. Time and again she has insisted that solutions to all the problems could be found through talks and negotiations.

SECTION -6

CONTRIBUTION OF YOUTH IN NATION BUILDING

General

1. The youth of a nation are the backbone and the most powerful force within the nation. They are the hope of the future and can shape the destiny of a country. History shows that countries subjected to alien rule have without exception sought the help of youth in times of crisis. The youth have also been instrumental in the change of governments, whenever need for such a change has been felt. They have always been in the forefront in the building of political, social and economic orders of a society. They play a positive role for the cause of a nation and national integration. Today's generation faces greater challenges in national building due to the force and pressure of internal politics and external conflicts.

Role of Youth

2. The youth have a leading role in bringing together the people of different states and religions with a view to integrating them socially, culturally and geographically.

PRINCIPAL
GOVT. COLLEGE
CHITTUR

National Integration

3. The youth act as a catalyst in an already vibrant country aspiring to find its rightful place in the world politics and play a more effective role of a true leader. To help India realise its dreams the youth can and ought to play a leading role in bringing together the people of different states with diverse religions and integrate them emotionally, culturally and geographically, contribute in extricating society from age old stigmas of casteism, communalism, parochialism and regionalism, help preserve cultural heritage and infuse the spirit of patriotism, thus keep the country together and defeat all separatist attempts by unscrupulous elements.

Political Measures

4. If a nation does not rejuvenate its political leadership profile it would become old in thought and slow in action. The youth are the future of a nation and its future leaders. The opportunity provided at educational level to contribute to politics should be encouraged and the youth should learn and follow clean and meaningful politics which can thereafter be translated into greater national aim.

5. It has been an unfortunate experience in recent times to see an alarming growth of certain tendencies which encourage splitting of the country. Sometimes it has been the language, sometimes region, sometimes religion and sometimes political might that have encouraged the different groups of people to agitate for a distinct existence. Such things can be avoided and national integration can be strengthened if the youth of different parts of India come together, understand one another and find that there is so much in the rich heritage of India that binds them together.

Security

6. The nation today faces grave security concerns both externally and internally. This intensifies when viewed with the fact that our country is a respected democratic country with a secular base. The terrorist, fundamentalists are a grave danger to our unity. The youth are the pulse and strength of the nation and with their alertness and their balanced approach can help in bringing stability to the nation and help in thwarting selfish designs of the enemy.

Social and Cultural

7. The youth are the privileged persons in the society who can contribute to development. Therefore they have a special responsibility and should actively participate in the development plans of the nation. Youth should be acquainted with the major problems facing the country. Firstly, they should study the basic problem of health, AIDS, environment, nutrition, lack of education, economic backwardness, ignorance, dowry-deaths, casteism, and superstitions /false beliefs of the masses. Our society is experiencing a constant change and faces the conflicting ideologies of the past vis-a-vis the West. Our past with a shadow of casteism superstition and religious over times needs a balanced approach and the youth can play a very important role.

in this regard and educate the general public about the misnomers relating to superstition. The need to do away with the caste system and encourage lateral, vertical and diagonal intermingling of people to mesh them into a true Indian network. They can establish good rapport with the people so as to involve them in active participation in social work which will help to make society a better place to live in.

8. Further, the Government programmes such as 'Clean and Green' are very good opportunities for youth to join hands with their countrymen and give impetus in the process of nation building.

9. Young men and women are the reservoirs of unbounded energy and enthusiasm. Youth should accept all the challenges faced by the country. Let the youth be put to best use. For this, their energies, skills and talents have to be properly harnessed, channelised and put to right use for the common good of the country.

10. India has already started National Cadet Corps (NCC), National Social Service (NSS), National Service Volunteer Scheme (NSVS) and other similar organization, which are an assets to our Nation. Apart from these measures to channelise young energy into constructive channels, following few steps can be taken.

(a) Films with social upliftment and nation building as theme would make a fair contribution in instilling a healthy and progressive attitude in the youth. Non Government Organisation (NGO) should also engage youth in such programmes which strengthen nation building.

(b) There should be integration committees, composed of representatives of various communities at village, city, district, state and national level. Youth should be engaged in such committees to contribute in society. Youth to train themselves effectively both in institutional and adventure activities, as such activities imbibe self confidence, harmony and patriotism.

NATION STATE, NATIONAL INTEREST AND OBJECTIVE

Nation

1. Nation is a large group of people sharing the same culture, language or history and inhabiting a particular state or area.

Country

3. Country is a nation with its own government, occupying a particular territory.
4. Nation State can be roughly defined as a country which has 'essential elements' as population, territory, sovereignty and Government.
5. The Constituent - Assembly, in the objective resolution adopted on 22 Jan 1947, declared the Assembly's firm and solemn resolve to make India an Independent Sovereign Republic, where-in the state shall process and retain the state of autonomous units. In the constitution, India is proclaimed as a 'Union of States' rather than as a Federal State. The distribution of power between the Union and the States, makes states subordinate to the centre.
6. The constitution has formally divided the legislative, administrative and financial power between the centre and the states. The legislative powers are distributed in three lists namely, the Union, the State and Concurrent. The Union list gives the centre the authority to act in matters of national importance which include defence, foreign affairs, currency, communication, banking, services, income, taxation and customs duties. The State list entrusts matter to the state which include law and order, local government, public health, education, and agriculture and economic and social planning among others. Law passed by the parliament prevail over those matters which are passed by the state legislatures in the concurrent lists. The residual power lies with Union over the States. The administrative power also gives preference to the Union over the States.
7. Legislative powers are vested in the Union and the States, but the power of the Union government remain dominant over the States.
8. India has inherited the federal structure from the Government of India act, 1935, which prescribed a federal type union of autonomous provinces, whose governments were to derive their powers directly from the crown. Such a decision was taken because, during the post independence era, India was divided into various segments and empowering them could hamper the democratic working of the country. It was also believed that the sound economic development of the country required centralized planning without any hindrance from the state.
9. As India is a multi-lingual, multi-religious and multi-racial country, we all Indians should rise above vested partisan interests and strive towards the welfare of the country.

National Interests

10. Every nation, with whatever form of government has certain political, social and economic interests and objectives to achieve overall development, prosperity, progress, nationalism and international recognition. To attain such objectives certain national interests are pre-requisites which are as follows:-

GOVT. COLLEGE
CHITTUR

- (a) Sovereignty. Foremost interest of the nation is to be autonomous and remain independent.
- (b) Integrity. The nation should be full, indivisible and have a well-defined territory.
- (c) Unity. The nation should be a secular union of states with political power belonging to a central confederate authority, with united and undivided goals without factional, sectarian or fanatical prejudices. It should be tolerant towards caste, colour, creed, religion and language of each other.
- (d) Security. The nation must ensure safety, territorial integrity and protection of the state against external threat or subversion.

National Objectives

11. India is a developing country. It has made rapid progress in all the spheres after its independence, viz, agriculture, industrialisation, urbanization etc. To visualise what India would be in future in all spheres is not an easy task. While ultimate objectives and millennium goals of the nation lie ahead, the basic objectives are found in the Directive Principles of State Policy enshrined in the Constitution of India which took effect when India became Republic. Directive Principles of State Policy lays down a code of conduct for the administrators of India in the discharge of their responsibilities as agents of the sovereign nation. They guide the path which will lead the people of India to achieve the noble ideals which the preamble of the constitution proclaim justice, social, economic and political, liberty, equality and fraternity.

12. There are 16 articles of the constitution from 36-51 that deal with the Directive Principles of State Policy. Important ones of these are as follows:-

- (a) To ensure and protect a social order which stands for the welfare of the people.
- (b) Separation of judiciary from the executive.
- (c) Protection of national monuments.
- (e) Protection and improvement in environment, forests and wild life.
- (f) Organise agriculture and animal husbandry on modern and scientific lines.
- (g) Improvement of public health.
- (h) Prohibition of intoxicating drinks and drugs.
- (j) Promotion of educational and economic interests of weaker sections of the people.

- (k) To have uniform code of law irrespective of caste, creed, colour or religion.
- (l) Participation of workers and labourers in labour law.
- (m) Promotion of cottage industries.
- (n) Provision of maternity relief.
- (o) Education to all.
- (p) Equal justice to all.
- (q) Equal pay for equal work for both men and women.
- (r) Adequate means of livelihood to all citizens.

13. Apart from the above Directive Principles, current objectives of our nation are as follows:-
